Committee on Diversity – Core Campus Climate Survey

Elizabeth Boling on behalf of the committee

INDIANA UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

The Survey ... spring 2014

- purpose ... assess faculty, staff, and students' perceptions of the cultural climate and efforts to address diversity issues in the School of Education
- survey items were derived from several existing surveys from other universities, and were modified or written for our purpose.
 - 16 demographic questions
 - 40 survey items organized under 7 diversity strategic objectives of the SoE
 - write in comments for each of the 7 diversity objectives
 - general diversity issues as well as specific cultural dimensions such as sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, religion, race/ethnicity, and gender

Respondents

- N=476
 - 71% Bloomington: 29% IUPUI
 - 76% female: 23% male
 - 55% students, 25% faculty, 17% staff, 2% administrators
 - 92% heterosexual, 7% lesbian, gay, or bisexual, 1% other
 - 6% with a disability: 92% without a disability
 - 10% African American, 7% Asian American, 4% Latino/a American, 74% White American, 3% multiracial, 2% international
- Among student respondents:
 - 37% undergraduate, 20% master's, 4% EdS, 37% doctoral, and 2% others
 - 9% lived in residence halls, 91% lived off campus

Preliminary Findings

The research team is still finalizing data analyses. A full report will be submitted to the Diversity Committee and the Dean's Office upon completion of analysis. An executive summary will be made available to the whole SoE community.

- Mean scores for all items generally fall above 3.0 on a 5-point scale (after reverse-scoring negatively phrased items), indicating generally positive perceptions of the cultural climate in the SoE.
- Respondents from the Bloomington and IUPUI campuses had some statistically significant differences on their perceptions. IUPUI respondents tended to have more positive perceptions about the cultural climate than Bloomington respondents. Most of the average scores were still in the 3-point-something range.

Preliminary Findings

- Undergraduate students tended to have more positive perceptions on some survey items than the other groups, but were less knowledgeable about the recruitment and retention initiatives of the School.
- African Americans tended to have more negative perceptions about the cultural climate than White Americans according to many items, with scores often in the 2-point-something range.
(Due to the small numbers of Asian, Latino, and Native Americans, racial comparisons could only be done between African and White Americans on most items)
- LGB respondents consistently indicated more negative perceptions than heterosexual respondents on many survey items, with average scores often in the 2-point-something range.

Preliminary Findings

- A total of 412 comments were provided in response to 7 open-ended survey questions corresponding to the 7 diversity strategic objectives.
 - 271 from IUB
 - 141 from IUPUI
- Analysis –
 - ATLAS.ti 7 to systematize the process
 - a four-member research team completed the analysis
 - representative quotes are included in the final report, as well as frequencies that illustrate the degree to which (dis)similar comments were offered
 - some segments will have fewer quotes in order to maintain anonymity

Preliminary Findings

- Thematic analysis –
 - organizational culture and climate of the SoE
 - students, faculty, and staff were generally supportive of the SoE; however, comments also indicated that there are areas in which further growth and development is needed
 - learning environments within the SoE
 - some instructors/faculty and/or programs are explicitly integrating these concepts into their classroom instruction. At the same time, some students suggested that more intentionality and sensitivity is needed to ensure consistent introduction of diversity issues in SOE classrooms
 - SoE policies and initiatives related to students and scholars of color, as well as issues related to diversity more general
 - diversity and recruitment initiatives were noted as being key to improving the organizational culture of the SOE

Programs Involving Children

Joyce Alexander

INDIANA UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Programs Involving Children

- Any IU staff, faculty, student, temporary worker, visitor or volunteer who works with minors must comply with this policy.
- Examples of programs that qualify include any research on or off campus, visiting local elementary/secondary schools as part of your role at IU, Saturday Art/Science, field experience with minors on campus, and anytime a child visits our campus/school in any capacity.

How to Comply with PIC Policy

Compliance involves five steps:

- Notify Donna Stevens for guidance
- Complete OneStart form to notify the University
- Create a Policy Sheet
- Ensure all members of the team have a background check
- Remind all members of the team of their responsibility to notify Child Protective Services and IU if you suspect any abuse/neglect

You must follow all steps above to be in compliance.

Professional development numbers represent intentional effort to discontinue a scattering of offerings outside the SoE bringing in minimal credits and no real community engagement.

Program innovations likely driving some program increases – our ongoing effort to relate data across measures (admissions, performance in programs, marketing efforts, matriculation) may help explain and control other fluctuations.

Bloomington Graduate Admissions

Yield for spring, summer, fall of 2014 – new students who matriculated as a percentage of those who were admitted:
